To Redeem Electric System Revenue Bonds Nov. 1

Redemption of $88,000 in City of Hondo Electric Light and Power System Revenue bonds issued in 1922 for purchase of the electric system will be effected Nov. 1, according to City Treasurer Frank Vance, and may result in lower electric rates for Hondoans.

The bond issue was voted in the 1922 election for the electric system purchase and only $10,000 was required, leaving a balance of $78,000 which the city has accumulated over the years to accumulate the money necessary where a total of 20 years was allowable.

Paying off will probably result in lower electric rates for consumers served by the Hondo system, according to Vance, although no definite can be made immediately as the system will be "practically broke" after paying off the bonds. So, for a few months the city will attempt to build up a reserve by maintaining present rates.

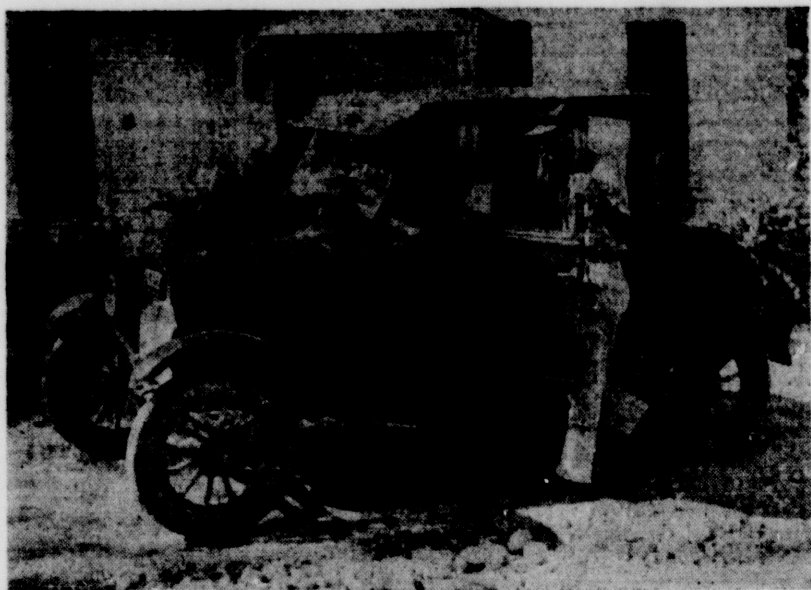

Paying of the bonds in so short a time was made possible largely through tremendous revenues collected for servicing the airfield and village, Vance said, as well as by the city's servicing much of the western and northern part of the county. While the City of San Antonio actually owned northern and western county lines, they found it more practical to pay the City of Hondo at the rate of $1 per meter per month to do the billing, meter reading and maintenance. San Antonio also supplied power for the army and village, but Hondo acted as middleman in the delivery of the energy thus collecting part of the revenue.

Negotiations of the REA to take over some of the county lines are most likely to affect lowering of the rates in Hondo. If the REA takes over some now serviced by the city it will mean the loss of considerable revenue. Still, Vance thinks, the rates will be reducible before very long.

Who Wants A New Car? Ben Crow Tours Ozarks Easily In 1926 Model T

Further evidence that the old was better than the new, and still is better, is abundant in Hondo this week with the return of Ben Crow, Hondo movie projectionist, from a 2,000 mile jaunt into the Missouri Ozarks with a 1926 "Model T"—and not one grease mark on his clothes.

"I've even got the same air in the tires that I started with," remarked Ben after coming into Hondo again late last Sunday week. "I didn't have to lift the hood during the entire trip except once a day to put in a quart of oil and didn't even have a flat tire."

Ben made his vacation trip alone, starting two weeks before, to pay a visit to Bill Murray who was stationed at the Hondo field nearly all the time between its opening and close. To cut down his gas mileage he rigged a special carburetor on the car, a type that went out of production many years before his Model T hit the market in 1926, and averaged over 30 miles per gallon.

Ben was a Texan when he left, and when he came back he was a more confirmed Texan. "I saw only two good looking girls out side of Texas," he reported. "And I didn't have a decent drink after leaving. I drank barrels of water in Oklahoma and Missouri and it never quenched my thirst." He had to admit, though, that even Texas water has dry spots here and there. Only good drink of water between Hondo and Missouri, he said, was in Denison.

He reported beautiful roads in Missouri and lousy drivers. The roads all have curbsings, to keep the shoulders from washing away, but when a driver signals it means he's going to do something—anything. Any old signal will do for left or right turn, stop or parking. Oklahoma is the reverse. There the roads are bad and the drivers more considerate.

Ben rattled all over the Ozarks in his Model T, taking the toughest hills with no trouble. Most impressive sight of his "Journey in a Tin Can," he reports, was seeing Missourians eat chicken three times a day like some southerners eat Black Eyed Peas.

Also impressive was the strip land in the mine country. "Huge man-made mountains, some of them 600 feet high," were a new sight to him.

But Ben is willing to let the world have its wonders. "The Ozarks are pretty, very pretty," he said. "But they won't compare with our hills of Texas, right north of here." He's glad to be home and he isn't figuring on trading in his "Old Faithful" for a sleek 1948 model with all its modern gimmicks.

Army Chapel Becomes Catholic Church In Hondo

One of the biggest house-moving jobs yet to be seen in Hondo was completed last week when the American House Moving Co. of Corpus Christi moved one of the large army chapels from the Hondo Airfield onto property at the corner of 16th Street and Avenue R where the chapel became Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church.

The building was cut into two sections for the task but all seats were left in their proper positions and none shifted so much as an inch during the move. It took only about two days actual work for the job.

C. C. Reagan, of Fort Worth, husband of the former Miss Josephine Hutzler, daughter of Mrs. A. J. Hutzler of Hondo, died early Sunday morning, Sept. 7, after an illness of one month.

THEO. CAGLE ATTENDS MOTHER'S FUNERAL HELD AT LOMITA

Mrs. Eunice Beatrice Cagle, 66, of Lometa, Texas, mother of Theo Cagle of Hondo, died suddenly, Aug. 31 at her home there.

Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Church in Lometa at five o'clock, Monday, Sept. 1. Reverend McDonald of Lometa officiated, and burial was in the Lometa cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, J. H. Cagle of Lometa, one daughter, Mrs. Clive Carothers, Lometa, and three sons, Alton A. of Bend, Oliver of Lometa, and Theo. There are eight grandchildren.

The affair will be held at Wernette's Garden, with a dance scheduled for the evening.

Polling places will be the same ones used for all general elections in the county, and will be open during the regular election hours, according to Ferd Rock, election superintendent. Rock stressed that it will not be enough to be in favor of the district without going to the polls to say so. There must be a large vote to pass the issue. A small vote, even though it be unanimously in favor, can not pass because it would indicate that too many people are not interested enough to get out and vote.

Discussion meetings are being conducted in five different county communities this week to further acquaint landowners with the workings of the district. Scheduled for Monday through Friday, they are at D'Hanis, Devine, Yancey, Castroville and Hondo. Guest speakers were invited from other conservation districts to help explain the practical value of the districts and tell Medina County men just what they are getting out of their districts.

Once the district is established, Medina County landowners will elect their own directors to administer the project. The land will be surveyed and tested, acre by acre, and plans for conservation and restoration will proceed from there.

John A. McAnelly, vocational agriculture teacher in Hondo High School, outlined a talk presented by Howard H. Goss, field representative of the Texas State Soil Conservation Board, at a public hearing in Uvalde some time ago which gives a comprehensive picture of the administration of a soil conservation district in relation to the tax payers and to higher government agencies. According to McAnelly, the setup is essentially as follows:

1. If you set up a soil conservation district, the government cannot make you do this or that—the local district is governed by the local directors of the area the district is to serve. Landowners living in the county, elected by the landowners are your directors.

2. If a soil conservation district is organized, your taxes will not be raised—The Texas Soil Conservation Law, passed in 1939, prohibits a soil conservation district from levying taxes or issuing bonds.

3. Money to operate the soil conservation district might come through the following steps: (a) The district's program of work is sent to the State Soil Conservation Board—here if approved it is forwarded to the Secretary of Agriculture; (b) The Secretary of Agriculture then enters into a memorandum which says in effect: "We the U.S. Department of Agriculture agree, that condition existing in your soil conservation district as you have listed them in your program are true and correct"; (c) The district program of work is then forwarded to the Soil Conservation Service, which enters into another "memorandum of understanding" with the local governing soil conservation body and agrees to help the local directors in carrying out the program; (d) The Federal Soil Conservation Service is one of the many agencies within the Department of Agriculture, and has no more authority in the local district than does the Extension Service, AAA, Farm Security Administration, Rural Electrification, or any other agencies in the department.

4. A soil conservation district would be set up by the people with the intention of preparing a plan of work and the intention of executing that plan of work, come what may, because of the benefits that accrue from that work.

Capt. Vince Huegele Is Hurricane Hero

Capt. Vince Huegele of San Antonio, son of Otto Huegele of Rio Medina and nephew of Mrs. Mina Meyer of Dunlap and of Mrs. Alex Haby of Hondo, was hero of numerous press dispatch stories this week.

An army pilot, the captain flew his B-17 weather plane into the core of the hurricane lurking off the coast of Florida early this week, combatting 140-mile winds in efforts to gain data on the storm. Some of the compartments of the plane were crashed in during the flight, but Huegele brought the big plane safely out of it and back to base.

Enrollment At Natalia High School Is Record

At the close of the first week of school, records show that the enrollment at Natalia High School is the greatest ever. So far 80 students have registered in high school alone. Two hundred fifty-four students have been added up in the elementary school. No official report has been received from the Latin-American school, but it is probable that 80 students are in attendance there. The colored elementary school will open Oct. 6, with an anticipated enrollment of about 100 students.

Classes met for organization Wednesday and class officers and advisors were chosen. The seniors are anxiously awaiting their new year and in general are a very enthusiastic and capable group of prospective 1948 graduates.

Supt. M. B. Tilley was in Austin Thursday and Friday conferring with Miss Hughey regarding plans for remodeling the homecoming building. He came back with the assurance that the state department is going to assist in any way possible to build a splendid home economics department here.

Hondo Veterans Purchase Cafe

Two young veterans of World War II, Robert Cosgrove, a native of Hondo, and "Micky" McGuire, an ex-Air Corps man who was stationed here, bought the Oasis Cafe from Mr. and Clem McDaniel last Saturday.

Cosgrove has been an extremely active member of the American Legion in Hondo and recently was a member of the committee which effected the purchase of the huge new home on the airfield for the two veteran's organizations. In the Coast Guard during the war, he served for nearly a year and a half in the North Pacific.

McGuire was one of the first soldiers on the Hondo field when it opened and hailed originally from near Chicago. Married to Cosgrove's sister, he has been living in Hondo since discharge and was employed by a local lumber company.

Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel planned to leave this week for Mexico where they will inspect a large ranch they plan to buy in partnership with B. T. Franklin of Uvalde and R. J. Zerr. They will continue to make their home in Hondo, whether or not they buy the property.

Natalia Voc. Ag. Building Readied

The Natalia Veterans Vocational Agriculture Class under the able supervision of their instructor, Mr. White, began remodeling the building purchased for that purpose by the Natalia school. This farm workshop will provide a place for the veterans to repair their farm machinery, build many useful household articles, as well as provide a classroom for lectures and demonstrations. The Natalia High School students will have the privilege of using this work shop during their class periods, and at the close of the veterans' program. All material and equipment will become property of the school for use in vocational agriculture and farm shop classes. Through close co-operation the school and the veterans expect to build a fine workshop that will be a credit to the entire surroundings.

SWING OF TEXAS MARKETS

Continued strong trends prevailed at Southwest farm markets last week, according to the Production and Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Most hog markets established new all-time high prices in advances ranging mostly from $1.00 to $2.25 per hundred pounds. Week's tops was $27.75 at San Antonio, $29 at Fort Worth, $30 at Oklahoma City, $30.35 at Wichita, and $31.75 at Denver. Sows and pigs shared the full advance to sell at mostly $22 to $28.

Southwest sheep moved at generally steady to stronger prices last week. Medium ewes brought $7 to $8.50 at Fort Worth. Best ewes brought $8 at Oklahoma City, and $8.50 at Denver. Wichita bought good and choice kinds at $7.50 to $8.50.

Cattle closed the week mostly steady to 50 cents higher than a week earlier, but weak spots appeared on calves and low grade stockers. Common to medium calves sold largely from $13 to $18.50 at Texas markets. Beef calves brought mostly $22 down at Oklahoma City and Denver, while Wichita paid $17 to $20 for good and choice heavy calves. Stocker and feeder calves sold generally at $16 to $22.

Seasonally scarce fresh eggs and poultry sold at firm to slightly higher prices last week. Cold storage eggs supplied most of the market for best grades. Fort Worth and Dallas offered around 55 cents per dozen for best candled white eggs, and 50 for mixed colors. Heavy hens brought mostly 23 to 26 cents per pound.

Grain markets made further sharp gains last week, with even poorer prospects for feed grain crops and more pressing requests from Europe for relief supplies. Sorghums gained around 25 cents per hundred pounds at Fort Worth and Galveston, and sold Friday at $3.82. Yellow corn rose 10 to 15 cents per bushel to sell at $2.65 and white corn $3.00. Wheat advanced 6 to 7 cents to reach $2.78.

Both rough and milled rice prices dropped back last week from recent record levels. Most feeds advanced sharply, while hay remained firm. Farmers' stock peanuts sold at support prices, and shelled peanuts found little demand at 16½ cents. Texas fall wool sold actively at 40 to 42 cents—1 to 4 cents more than support levels.

Cotton dropped sharply following the crop report Monday, but climbed back to close Friday only a little lower for the week. Spot sales increased, and demand continued good for strict low middling and above of 7-8 to 31-32 staple.

Potatoes, onions, and cauliflower strengthened last week at Colorado shipping points. Sweet potatoes loaded in Southern Louisiana at lower prices of $2.60 to $2.65 per 50-pound crate of U. S. No. 1 Porto Ricans. Light receipts met good demand at New Orleans' wholesale market, where potatoes and peppers sold strong. Kansas City and St. Louis saw rather slow trading on mostly light to moderate supplies. Potatoes, carrots, beans, and tomatoes last found good demand at firm prices.

PEANUTS SELL AT SUPPORT PRICES

South Texas farmers continued selling a few peanuts at mostly government support prices this week, according to the Production and Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Shellers offered new crop shelled Spanish peanuts at 16½-17 cents per pound for No. 1's, but found very little demand. Millers quoted first new crop 43 per cent protein peanut meal at $85 per ton. Peanut oil strengthened slightly, and Southwest millers asked 19 cents per pound for oil of 5 per cent refining loss, basis prime crude.

Southwest growing conditions changed little during the week. Some sources expect yields in important peanut growing sections to be cut materially because of dry weather.

The eighth grade is very happy to have Mrs. Busch our language arts teacher, Mr. Duncan our math and health teacher, Mr. Wilson our social studies teacher and also our home-room teacher.

LYDA KOCH SCHWEERS

For soon your soul will be in "ETERNITY-LOCKED." God loved the world for He gave His Son.

It gives a sad warning when at TWO That for your sins He died for you.

What does it say for sinners at THREE "When OH When" will you serious be?

Come to Christ it says at FOUR, Enter now for He waits at the door.

Hear it speak as it strikes FIVE, To enter Heaven you must strive.

Of your fading days it speaks at SIX That life is a vapor it ticks and ticks.

It warns you when it says at SEVEN You must be born again to enter Heaven.

How solemn the chimes when striking EIGHT, No longer wait you may be too late.

Then louder still it warns at NINE, No longer slight GOD, Loves Divine.

With Pleading voice it now strikes TEN, Why must you die you son of men?

Sad words sound as it tolls ELEVEN, ALMOST TOO LATE" to enter Heaven.

"HARK," it's "TWELVE"! The die is cast, 'Tis Heaven or Hell for you at last.

Chick Chatter

HONDO, TEXAS

Last spring, in urging our friends here in Medina County to buy more chicks and get ready for fall egg production, we said that eggs might touch $1.00 per dozen (meaning New York price) by fall. Most of you read the daily papers and hear the market reports on the radio, and perhaps you already know that the price of eggs in New York was 90c last week, with no sign of a let up.

We are not trying to say "we told you so," but the fact is that when everyone gets the idea that something is too much trouble to raise, the few who do stick to it and work at the game will make more money.

Feeding Economy

Birds with healthy appetites almost invariably produce more eggs than those that don't get their share at the feed trough. And yet the cost of feeding a flock of poor eaters, when judged against the comparative amount of eggs produced, is greater than the expense of providing for a similar number of healthy birds.

For instance, statistics have shown that 100 four-pound hens which are in 40 per cent production will require nine days to produce a case of eggs and that during this time they will consume 216 pounds of feed. A similar number of four-pound hens having healthy appetites and producing at the rate of 70 per cent will lay a case of eggs in 5.1 days while consuming 153 pounds of feed. In other words, while the bird with a vigorous appetite eats more each day, her production of eggs is so rapid that she is a far more economical boarder than her weaker sister. She is paying her way.

Ask us what your birds are going to need to keep in high production. See that your flock has plenty of the right kind of nourishment. Make sure there's enough room at the feeders so that each bird can have an adequate diet. Don't skimp on grit and oyster shell. Above all, look after the health of your chickens—a well-managed flock usually will be in good condition and their appetites will be on a scale that guarantees good production.

We are always glad to talk over your poultry problems—just ask us.

HERE'S HOW TO TAKE GOOD PICTURES EVERY TIME

A large eastern camera company sells several million rolls of camera film every year using the slogan "You press the button, it does the rest," and there is a lot of truth in that slogan. Usually if you point your trusty box camera at something and "press the button," some kind of image will result. But why be satisfied with indifferent pictures when you can get clear, lifelike reproductions every time by following a few simple rules? Using a camera is lots of fun, but it is not much fun to get back a set of blurred pictures with barely recognizable subjects.

First of all, don't discount the inexpensive box camera. Some prize-winning pictures have been taken with the good old box.

Second, handle your camera carefully. Don't throw it in the car trunk or bake it in that portable oven called the glove compartment. When you take a picture, hold the camera firmly with both hands and click the shutter with a thumb movement only. Don't expect a razor-sharp picture if you do not hold your camera steady at the all-important moment of exposure. And if your camera has a time exposure adjustment, make sure that you do not have the lever on time. That little lever in the wrong place can ruin an entire roll of film.

Third, get the sun at your back. If you must take pictures in the shade, be sure that it is open shade. Why stand beneath the branch of a tree through which some sunlight passes—unless you want to look like a leopard on the picture?

Fourth, load and unload your camera carefully. Hold the roll so that it does not unwind when loading and be sure that it is tightly rolled and sealed after exposure. And if your camera is not the type with an adjustable opening at the lens, don't use high-speed panchromatic film. The result will only be dissatisfying. Take the good old standard speed film and let the salesman sell the superduper highpriced stuff to someone else.

Fifth, send your films to the Hondo Photo Studios. We use the most modern equipment available, and we give each of your negatives a careful inspection before printing. We make enlarged Jumbo prints from your negatives at the price you pay for the regular size, six or eight exposures for 35c. What's more, we will have your pictures back to you in 24 hours. For clear, sparkling, lifetime prints, follow the above rules and then send your films to Hondo Photo Studios, Box 58 Hondo, Texas. — (Adv.)

Owls Invade Burnet Lair Saturday

Tom Bridges will be invading his own home town territory Saturday night when he takes his crew of Hondo Owls to the Burnet gridiron to meet the Burnet Bulldogs, but he isn't planning on any sentiment on the field.

Bridges hails from Marble Falls, a small town about 14 miles from Burnet and he played against the Bulldogs as a high school gridster. But he is taking a scrappier, smoother flock of Owls up there than the team that looked only mediocre against Sabinal.

Burnet will be lighter than the Owls by from five to 10 pounds, but they will be fresh from an 18-3 victory over Richland Springs in which they showed fine form and plenty of punch. Heaviest Bulldogs will be two 165 pounders, Stanford in the backfield and Daugherty at tackle. All the other starters weigh in the 150s and 160s.

Carl Bage is the Bulldog coach, a former coach of the Kenedy district champs of 1942 that were beaten by Bridges in the bi-district 13-0. Bage uses the T-formation mixed in with the single and double wings, which means a tricky, hard-to-catch ball club if they can handle the ball.

Ordinarily the double wing, when used with the T and the single wing, will presage a pass, so Hondo fans can half-expect pass plays when the Bulldogs hit the double wing. Used without passing it allows for razzle-dazzle that is almost impossible to follow—if the ball handlers are perfect.

The Owls use the single and double wings about equally, with no T plays. Game time will be 8 p.m. Saturday at Burnet, and the Bulldog colors will be white and green. Owl line-up probably will be same as in the Sabinal game—

Owls Look Bad But Don't You Believe It, Folks

The Hondo Owls' defeat of Sabinal 18-0 was convincing, but it was hardly convincing or even heartening to Hondo fans who have become accustomed to thinking in terms of post-season championships.

Because the Owls didn't look good at all.

Hopeful points in the outlook, though, are numerous. For one thing, it's a well-known fact that Coach Tom Bridges doesn't believe in running up high scores against any opposition, especially in the season's first game. Also, the Owls of 1947 had been together practicing for only a week, and while Sabinal's Yellowjackets looked a little spotty as a team also, they were all tough and light and fast. It's hard for any team to look really super-duper against such opposition.

The 18-0 score wasn't so bad, it was the way the Owls rolled it up in the first half and then couldn't get anywhere for the entire second half. Their blocking was far from what we expect from the Owls, and their tackling was nearly as bad.

Still the question rises—were they as bad as they looked? They probably weren't. Every football-minded fan in Hondo will be there next game (Oct. 3, vs. Pearsall) to find out, and it is likely that there'll be quite a few at Burnet this week end or at Fredericksburg next week end.

Carle made the first score in the first quarter after Braden had snagged a Sabinal punt and advanced it to the Sabinal 41. Carle, Braden and Boon did the ball carrying. Two scores came in the second period, Braden sparking a drive and finally going over with little trouble. Third touchdown was in the same period when Braden hurled a nice 30-yard pass to Boon who galloped another 29 yards for the score.

The Owls lost a total of 30 yards in offside and clipping penalties while the Yellowjackets were guilty of jumping the gun three times. Sabinal attempted 20 passes, completed 10 for total yardage of 120 yards. Sabinal used passing plays almost exclusively in the second half. Hondo

BLESS ON STSC FIRST STRING BACKFIELD

SAN MARCOS, Sept. 11—Franklin Bless of Hondo is among the sixty-odd football hopefuls who turned out for football practice at outwest Texas State College on Sept. 1.

The hard-running Bless is currently operating from fullback on the first string backfield. He was a squadman last year for the Bobcats. He was also a squadman for the Aggies in 1944.

Ligon All Stars Win 81, Lose 9 In Canada Tour

Ligon's All Stars, travelling professional baseball team, returned to Hondo last week with an impressive record of wins in Canada which was only slightly marred Tuesday by their defeat at the hands of the Hondo Bears in an exhibition game.

The Ligon outfit toured through Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, North and South Dakota and entered Canada on June 15 where they played over British Columbia and other parts of Canada including many games in the Canadian Rockies, and Prince Albert National Park. Bert Shepherd's northern team

NATALIA MUSTANGS FACE TOUGH SCHEDULE

The Natalia Mustangs under Coach Henry Mullins are working out daily in preparation for a successful year of football. The Mustangs were placed in the stronger bracket of the district by the district committee, and face such teams as Yancey, Catarina, La Pryor and La Coste in conference play.

With all lettermen returning and with the addition of several promising freshmen and others who were ineligible last year to the line-up, Coach Mullins has his eye on the district championship. Those showing up well in practice so far are M. J. Clines and Ed Richardson at end; Homer Van at center, and Bobby Brewer, Allie Guevara and Buddy Menck in the backfield. Replacements who are scrapping for a place on the starting line-up are John Pritchard, Ray Johnston and George Olson at end; Alvin Hagen at center; and Gene Smith, Jimmy Menck, and Paul Tudyk in the backfield.

The Mustangs open the season against Ashton on the new Mustang field Friday Sept. 19 at 3. Remainder of the schedule is: Sept. 26—Big Wells at Big Wells; Oct. 3—Castroville Parochial School at Natalia; Oct. 10—Yancey at Natalia; Oct. 17—Camp Wood at Natalia (tentative); Oct. 24—Lacoste at Lacoste; Oct. 31—Castroville at Natalia; Nov. 7—Catarina at Dilley; Nov. 14—La Pryor at La Pryor.

took to the air in the fourth quarter attempting 10 passes and completing none.

Tommy Amberson, in a backfield slot, didn't do much ball carrying but did good defensive work except against the passes.

The U. S. Soil

If we want a permanent country instead of a temporary country, we must all take steps to keep it from washing away.

Patrick Henry once said, "He is the greatest patriot who stops the most gullies."

Chester C. Davis, head of the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank district, encourages bankers to lend money to local farmers who want to improve their farms. He says, "We have not found a single instance in which the investments made for soil conservation, soil building and other farm improvement practices were not highly profitable." That means profitable for the landowner, which also means that the loans are good for us to make.

Those of us who are not on or of the soil must give a helping hand to those who live close to the soil . . . read Isaiah 40:6, and be sure to vote on Sept. 23 for the establishment of the soil conservation district.

Owlets Open With Devine Here Thursday

With 30 squadmen to choose from, Hondo Owlet Coach Marvin Duncan will open his 1947 schedule against Devine Thursday, Sept. 18, on the Hondo field at 8 p.m.

The Owlets will play Uvalde's junior team next Thursday at Uvalde, and after that their schedule will criss-cross with the Owls schedule, playing in Hondo when the Owls are away and away when the Owls are here, and playing the junior teams of the same schools the Owls are playing.

Coach Duncan's tentative starting line-up Wednesday included Ralph Gilliam at center, Mike Larkin and Henry Dominguez at ends, James Wendland and Edward Brucks at tackle, and Roy O'Neal and Florentino Morales at guards. Newell Woolls will play quarterback, Floyd Saathoff and Roy Meyers halfbacks, and Tommy Hollmig full.

was one of the notables licked by Ligon, and they also defeated the team owned by the famous Chicago Blackhawks hockey stars, the Bentley brothers, collecting 81 victories against nine defeats in their Canadian tour. The All Stars also won the $2,000 tournament at Indian Head, Saskatchewan.

THE SOIL AND ITS CONSERVATION

Proposals of the movement now for creating a Medina-Bandera Conservation District, we repeat portions of two articles written by this columnist some 25 or years ago as applying as well as then:

With the exception of the comparatively insignificant portion from the sea and the waters flow into it, the soil supplies, either directly or indirectly, its entire physical sustenance. As thou art, and from the soil thou derive thy nourishment, is just as true as the holy decree that "unto dust shalt thou return." Indeed, should that time come when the zealous clay fails to yield man his sustenance, return to his native dust cannot be stayed nor long delayed. Not only is man's continuance on this earth dependent upon the fertility of the soil, but his prosperity, contentment and happiness while here is dependent upon the history records no great and wonderful civilization, renowned for its science and its arts, the movements that have blessed advanced humanity, that was based on a barren and unfruitful soil. But on the contrary, the deserts of desert lands have blown away over the tombs of forgotten peoples who, in their neg-

WHAT WE READ IN THE PAPERS

Getting "up in the air" about something used to be what is now referred to as being "all hot and bothered". Now it seems that it takes an experience of the former to produce the effect of the latter. Anyhow, that is the conclusion to be drawn from the following comment taken from Hornby's "Going Around" column in a recent issue of the Uvalde Leader-News:

"Some weeks ago a Leader-News representative flew over Highway 83 to Junction. The photographs showed work being done on the highway from Junction to Kerr County, but failed to show any progress on building the highway across some twenty miles of ranch road in Kerr County. Failure to fill in this gap causes motorists to detour some 40 miles in order to keep on the pavement. Roy Davenport says it penalizes motorists on extra travel and consequently they must purchase more gasoline and he thinks it a shame that one small piece of right-of-way should be allowed to delay the completion of Highway 83 from Canada to the Gulf. If one small piece of ground is all that is necessary he believes that motorists who use this highway should make urgent protests to the Highway Commission on this failure to see that this road is

NEW TELEPHONE LINES AT BANDERA

Plans for extension of the telephone lines in the west part of the Bandera rural area to bring new improved two-wire service to ranchers have been announced by S. L. Miller, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Telephone company representatives will interview residents this week to determine how many are interested in the service, and construction will start later. The new wires will cost about $71,000.00.

In a nut-shell, the new system will make it possible to telephone from the country to the town—and hear what is being said.

BANDERA BULLETIN IN NEW BUILDING

The Bandera Bulletin is now in its new building on Upper Main Street, having moved from the museum. J. Marvin Hunter is the publisher, and announces that further improvements will be made in the future.

SUICIDE IN SABINAL

Two attempts at suicide, one of which succeeded, marred the serenity of Medina County's western neighbor, Sabinal, Monday of last week.

Barney Burkhalter shot himself through the head with a 38-40 rifle, according to the Sabinal Graphic, and shortly later Mrs. Pat Griffin took an overdose of sleeping tablets. Mrs. Griffin's attempt was discovered and she was rushed to the hospital in Uvalde for treatment, being returned to her home the following Wednesday.

NEW THEATER

Little Sabinal, with a rushing business in one theater, will soon have another. Gene Burris, owner of the existing Ross Theater, expects to have the new one operating by Christmas.

NEW TRUCK COMING

Carrizo Springs' drive for a new fire truck is paying off fast, according to the Carrizo Springs Javelin. Goal is $7,000 in donated money, and since the disastrous fire of a few weeks ago the total has reached $6,100. New truck has been ordered already.

Carrizo, incidentally, is building up. At present there is more than $250,000 worth of commercial construction going on.

PLEASANTON QUEEN

The town of Pleasanton is in quest of a queen this week—one to reign over the Atascosa County Fair which comes up Oct. 23-26. Queen will be selected by popular ballot, and her coronation will be on the first night of the doings.

METERS NOT WANTED

City of San Marcos voted down their own idea of installing parking meters in the downtown area last week following a door-to-door poll among businessmen and a post card poll among the citizenry.

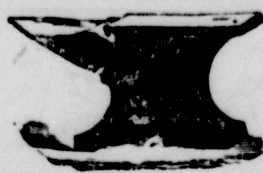

Businessmen were willing to try them, but weren't in favor. The post card poll showed the people slightly opposed, so the council voted it down unanimously.

By The Editor

The editor experienced a strange joy Tuesday morning of this week—strange because it was caused by inconvenience.

Driving to work he was forced to detour seven or eight blocks before he could find his way around the courthouse because of the crews busily at work on the street resurfacing.

It would have been easier to turn around and backtrack a block to go around, but just for the joy of detouring for such a cause he kept on going.

The paving project has already covered much of the north section of town and before it is finished it will cover a substantial area in all sections. Real estate is always worth more on paved streets, and paved streets make a good impression on visitors as well as adding to the convenience of our own citizens.

To our hundreds of county shoppers who will be in town this week and find blocked roads, we can only say—Please excuse our detours. They are signs of progress.

Incidentally, the paving and resurfacing is about the same stuff that has been breaking windshields and damaging fenders on the county roads. Such accidents are not the fault of the pavement, but the fault of the drivers. Our roads are paved with a type of paving that gets better as it is used, and the more traffic that rolls over them the better the surface grows. Such roads save you money in both the short and long run.

But remember—the stones fly until they are packed down. Don't speed. There is a law against speeding in town, but many, many of us do it knowing there is no danger of being caught except on 14th street where the arm of the law is always lurking to catch soldiers under the strange impression that they are strangers and not inhabitants of Hondo—Hondosans, like you and me.

So take it easy on the new streets and save yourself the expense of replacing cracked windshields and of repainting fenders. And remember, it's the fellow you're passing who usually suffers, so be considerate, neighbor.

Ex-Hondoan Lauded In Corpus Christi Paper

H. B. Haegelin, Duval County Agent, Prominent In Civic, Youth Work

Just to prove that Hondoans have an inherent way of making good no matter where they go, we are reprinting the following from the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Hero of the story, H. B. Haegelin, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Haegelin and is a graduate of Hondo High School.

By JAMES ROWE
Caller Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — Future farmers and ranchers of this area will be better citizens as well as better farm and ranch managers, if H. B. Haegelin, Duval County agricultural agent, has his way.

"I don't think it's enough to teach a boy just to grow bigger and fatter pigs or calves," Haegelin said. "If you don't at the same time teach him to be a better citizen I think you're just spinning your wheels."

This novel thesis is not a part of the course of instruction in county agent work at Texas A&M College, where he took his degree in 1933. Nor did the philosophy come to him all at once.

It took five years for Haegelin to begin taking an interest in civic affairs not specifically related to his work as a county agent. Now he is one of the county's outstanding civic leaders.

"I never used to belong to any kind of organization other than my church," he confessed. "Then, when they began organizing a Rotary Club here in 1938 I joined just to help them out."

From that beginning Haegelin's activities multiplied. Save for a break of approximately five years in the Army (he rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel after being called from the Organized Reserves as a lieutenant) he's been busy at the job of making San Diego and Duval County a pleasanter place.

He was a Boy Scout Master, at one time the president of two civic clubs, he is the immediate past commander of the American Legion Post here. He is given a large part of the credit for organizing The Community Builders, a unique federation of every civic, fraternal and service organization in San Diego.

The Community Builders, which has no president or other officers, had its second annual banquet last month. Reports or progress included the announcement that more than $15,000 had been collected in a drive for a community building here.

"The drive began as a campaign to build a veterans memorial hall," he explained. "But we felt that a community building that everyone could use would be more appropriate."

The building, with recreation grounds surrounding it, will go up on a site directly across Highway

59 from the Duval County Courthouse. Actual construction will begin when material costs are reduced.

"The building will include an auditorium, probably a banquet hall and auditorium and recreation rooms," he said. "Primarily it will be for the youth of the community, a place where they may have their dances and other entertainment."

His work as a county agent goes on simultaneously.

Through 4-H and Future Farmers of America Clubs Haegelin teaches the basic as well as finer points of farming, range management, the care and feeding of dairy and beef cattle and poultry. He encourages an active participation in community activities.

He is the counselor to farmers and ranchers who come with problems of livestock and the soil.

The Extension Service at College Station has from time to time offered Haegelin counties with both greater area and population, many of them considered "plums" by other county agents. He has refused them all.

"There is a great deal to be done here," he said simply.

The name of H. B. Haegelin has become not quite a legend in Duval County and other counties in South Texas. But his influence throughout Duval County is great. "Why don't you go see Haegelin" is the remark that often greets the visitor seeking either information or action.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Yes, I'm Guilty!

Folks sometimes criticize us small-town editors for the way we often play up "little things" ahead of big... human, local news in place of world events.

I can't deny it. Read the Clarion and you'll learn about the Martins' golden wedding anniversary... about the community sing down by the river... the husking bee at Sober Hoskins', where neighbors helped husk the corn, and later drank sparkling beer together.

"Little things?" Maybe. But from where I sit, they add up to the bigger things we call America: The friendliness of small towns... the helping hand... the respect for one another's rights. And above all the love of fellowship and freedom—whether it's freedom to speak one's mind or choose between a glass of beer or buttermilk.

I figure that if everybody looks after the "little things," maybe the bigger things will take care of themselves.

lect of their soil, exhausted its fertility and starved their civilization as they robbed their soil. Surely then, a substance that holds so much of weal and woe for the human family—weal when properly handled and made to yield its abundance; woe when abused, neglected, or robbed—should engage the thoughtful study of all; not only those who till it but those who have at heart the future welfare of the human family.

As one travels over an agricultural country he can but be impressed with the evident manner in which the character of the soil stamps itself upon the people that dwell upon the land. Travel through a fertile, productive section and the evidence that the soil is generous in its bounty is every where. It speaks in prosperous-looking, comfortable homes, good farm equipment, good roads, attractive churches and modern school buildings. It permeates the very atmosphere, and manifests itself in the aggressive, forward-looking manner of the people. Pass into an area of poor, sterile, unproductive soil and you pass to a region of squalid homes, poor and unkempt roads, tumbling down churches and worse school houses. You meet a shiftless, discouraged people whose initiative has shriveled in a direct ratio with the diminishing yields of their acres, and an atmosphere of lethargy steals away your ambition ere you are aware.

Verily, the soil is not alone the blood and bone and sinew of the people; it is the essence of their mental and spiritual development as well. The starling is a stranger to ambition, and the soul can know no heaven beyond its capacity to enjoy.

Not all soils are found in nature equally productive. They vary in many ways and most of them have their special adaptations. How to know their adaptations so as best to use them; how to know their limitations so as best to overcome or avoid them; how to render them most productive, most abundant in yielding man's sustenance, without at the same time exhausting or destroying them, is society's most interesting, most fascinating science and humanity's most vital problem. Upon the maintenance of soil fertility depends the destiny of nations and the hope of humanity.

To the above we can but add that while his grandfather could find and clear a new field after exhausting one—or several—the grandson can afford no such profligacy; he must save his fields by learning—and practicing—proven methods of soil conservation. It is his personal problem to work out on his own ground; unless he does that—gives them his co-operation—the State's and the Nation's labors at conservation will be in vain.

WHAT WE READ

completed after twenty years delay. He urges interested parties to file their protests with the Highway Commission and also with their local road organization.

Supporting some of Mr. Davenport's reports is the statement by County Judge Sansom of Real County. He stated there are fourteen miles unpaved ranch road in Kerr County. The traveler must go over this rough road or make a forty mile detour to stay on pavement. His efforts so far to get this road paved finds a dead end in Kerr County. The State Highway Department makes promises but they have been doing that for years and nothing has come of it. Says Judge Sansom it looks very much like politics is keeping this road from being paved and the traveler must go to added expense and loss of time as a consequence. The voters of our county are getting very much riled up over this delay in paving this stretch of road in Kerr County.

Now that the public is "up in the air" about this delay maybe the powers that be will "bother" to see that the cause for delay is removed.

With that incubus removed, perhaps more attention can be given to the Hondo to Leakey extension of 173.

Warning against our country's trend in the same direction, Columnist George S. Benson sizes up the conditions in England, under the "crisis bill" with the statement that a "striking feature of the crisis bill, as reported by Associated Press, was that it gave the government power to tell both men and women where to work and what to do. This includes women from 18 to 40 years of age who have no children under 16, and men from 18 to 50 years of age. This loss of freedom of individuals has been unthought-of heretofore in English speaking countries.

"What does this measure mean? It means that no privately-owned industry is at liberty to hire men under the age of 50, or women under the age of 40, except through the government employment agency. It means that any woman under 40, unless she is the mother of small children, may be told where to go and what to do. All men between the ages of 18 and 50 may be told where to work and what jobs to take."

That is how it is today in England.

Today we read in our morning paper "that migratory workers who wish to leave Texas must first write to the out-of-state farmer for whom they wish to work. He will inform his local county agent who will clear the petition through his state farm labor supervisor. This supervisor must gain approval of the Texas farm labor authorities."

This is in America and Texas, where it has been our boast that we are "free to work at the job we choose, where we choose and to bargain for our wages".

Mr. Benson's warning is certainly not sounded any too soon.

This is how Robert Quillen views the effects of our present inflation: "You thought you were playing safe when you put cash in your safe deposit box. But inflation got to it and nibbled 60 cents from each dollar."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Formula for Peace

WASHINGTON.—James F. Byrnes, trigger-smart former secretary of state now practicing law in Washington, has been following the administration's foreign policy with intense interest. This is particularly true in regard to relations with Soviet Russia, with whom Byrnes had protracted, and at times painful, encounters during a number of conferences.

An old friend asked Byrnes if he thought it was possible for the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. to reach a better understanding. This was Byrnes' reply:

"I think it is, and this is my formula. Get people who believe deeply that we can find a basis for working with the Russians. Then support these people to the limit. When they start getting discouraged and cynical, replace them with others who are confident that a solution can be found.

"As is evident, such a program would take time, patience, brains and courage. But I believe it would work. I certainly think it would be worth while trying. War is a terrifying alternative to consider."

An Englishman Talks

Unhappy newsmen in Washington are the British correspondents who covered negotiations over easing of the U. S. loan. The Englishmen took the proceedings very hard; as if they were an indignity on them personally.

Illustrative of their viewpoint was the outburst one gave vent to following Treasury Secretary John Snyder's press conference, in which he explained the U. S. plan to bail Britain out of its latest fiscal difficulty. Snyder was tactful and courteous. But as the newsmen left his office, a British correspondent turned to an American and said bitterly:

"The more I learn about my country's plight, the more I wonder what we got out of victory in the war. The Germans at least enjoyed the plunder of all Europe before being defeated and now they are living off the fat of America and whatever we can scrape together to send them. The Japs are downright happy under MacArthur's solicitous ministrations, and the Italians are doing very well for themselves."

New Coolidge

Massachusetts' GOP has a new Coolidge who is just as earthy, cautious and parsimonious with words and money as the late Pres. Calvin Coolidge.

He is Lt. Gov. Arthur W. Coolidge, fourth cousin of "Silent Cal." Like his famed kin, Arthur also was formerly president of the Bay State senate, another of Calvin's stepping stones to the White House. Arthur resembles Cal in many respects, particularly in economy-mindedness.

Illustrative of this was an incident that occurred the first day Arthur took over the state's reins during a brief absence of Gov. Robert Bradford. Looking out of the window, the acting governor observed the water-sprinkling system operating full force on the capital grounds. It was an overcast day, and suddenly a brisk summer shower broke. The sprinklers kept right on going.

Coolidge immediately telephoned the building superintendent and demanded, "Why waste the taxpayers' money watering the grass when the good Lord is doing it for nothing? Shut off those sprinklers."

On another occasion, the lieutenant governor was luncheon host to a group of politicians and reporters at the Boston City club. They were handed menus presenting an enticing array of succulent a la carte selections. But before his guests could start ordering, Coolidge broke in dryly with, "Waiter, I'll have the luncheon special." The special cost 90 cents.

High-Minded Lady

Petty and partisan politics is so general in congress that an exception gleams out like a beacon in a stormy night.

Such a distinguished exception is Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, long-time representative from Massachusetts and widely known to war veterans as an unflinching and untiring champion. Long before becoming chairman of the house veterans committee, Mrs. Rogers labored and battled for ex-servicemen.

Since becoming committee chairman, unlike some of her predecessors, Mrs. Rogers has not attempted to hog the committee's limelight. It doesn't matter to her whether the sponsor of a veterans' bill is a Republican or a Democrat. If she favors a measure, she backs it to the hilt with full credit to the author.

Pilgrims Did Not Land On Rock, Nor on Dec. 21

America's oldest legend, still widely believed, is that the Pilgrims aboard the Mayflower made their first landing in this country on December 21, 1620, on a rock in what is now Plymouth, Mass., says Collier's. Actually, they first came ashore on Cape Cod the previous November 11.

The rock story is not substantiated by any historical records and did not start until 121 years later.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Propaganda in 'Unreal' Art

WASHINGTON.—The general belief prevails that unreal art is Communist. It is in character and in form. But many anti-Communists perform in this unreal field. Chagall, the French abstractionist leader, is a Catholic. Several leading American Catholic magazine editors consider Chagall a great artist and his field as a new, uplifting art venture. The prevalence of a long list of Jewish abstractionists has sponsored another erroneous supposition that the unrealistic art form is Jewish. It is not.

Unrealism in art is older than Communism. Turner's landscapes contained more mist than substance. The Communist Picasso became the best known adventurer in carrying unrealism to the extreme of setting down a few lines and colors and calling it art.

Some unrealism had always existed in art—nebulous backgrounds, indistinguishable objects, bare suggestions. This quality is even older and more widely accepted in everyday living. From antiquity, people saw a man in the moon simply because they could not distinguish the surface valleys there. People have long logically seen cloud formations or certain portions of the earth's surface as suggesting a real form of some other substance (embattlements, sleeping Indians or such).

IMAGINARY PICTURES

But it was the Communist Picasso who brought art unrealism to the extreme of imagining an indistinguishable or normally unidentifiable association of a few lines and color to be a real substance. The lines of the moon really resemble a face. But Picasso made lines which did not resemble an object and called this a picture of the object.

This is Communism in character for two reasons: (A) the Communist revolution calculates destruction of all values in all fields, and the Communist revolution in art has destroyed the value of logical resemblance; (B) the method used is the same as the Communists practice in their unreal politics to destroy logical reasoning based on discernible and provable facts and figures, in favor of a wholly visionary conception. Thus they call political white, black, and vice versa and imagine it to be so. Thus they disassociate their politics from logical principles (guiding general facts) for attainment of an indistinguishable goal. They try to hinder feeding Europe, for instance, to accomplish an undefined, purely negative revolution.

The precise quality of this art can be described although it seldom has been. Carry it logically two steps further than it has gone and you will see its character in its isolated, pure essence. Imagine a bare canvas to be "meat balls" because I call it that. Then take away the canvas entirely and imagine nothing—absolutely nothing at all to be—"meat balls." This is the quality and character of that art.

IT'S NOT AMERICAN ART

A bare canvas bears some resemblance to a painting, because it is used for that purpose. Perhaps some people will be readily able to envision in the weave of the canvas the form of some meatballs. But if you take the canvas away and imagine nothing at all to be meatballs, you have isolated the quality and character of non-objectivity in its real essence.

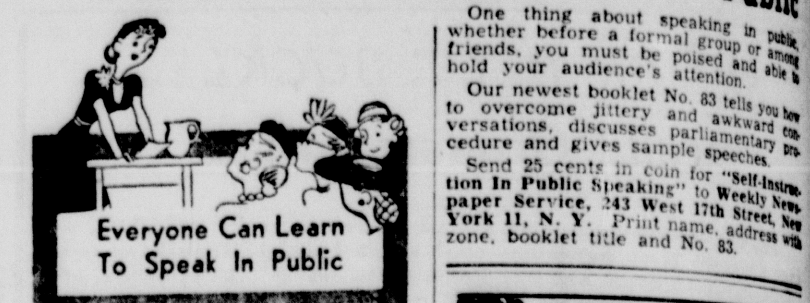

Museum directors, art dealers, artists and particularly rich collectors who are easy marks for unrealism in art, are criticizing anti-Communists and the state department for refusing to send a show containing a large portion of this peculiar product around the world as American art. They do not realize they are being rather stupid. Public money pays for transportation of American art shows to tell foreign nations of our culture. This art is not American culture. To send it abroad as such is a misrepresentation of our culture. To do so when Communism is combatting us around the world with unreal politics is dangerous and plays into the culture of Communism. Public officials would be deficient in sense if they thought this art was American culture, by any calculations, and derelict in their duty if they tried to spend public money to send it abroad as such.

A Selfish Minority

Members of unions and their families number about 35 million, or about one-fourth of the population of the United States. Quite obviously they are not "the consumers," but one-fourth of same. The next question then is do they represent the interest of consumers? Do they act in the interests of consumers?

Only on Sundays, you might reasonably say. They have CIO and AFL branches which they call consumers' divisions, and these emit statistics, and propaganda on prices being too high, and attack business and profits.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Marrying Him to Reform Him

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"He drifted about my boarding house, gray-headed, a sad shadow of his old self, borrowing money where he could."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"I THOUGHT my husband was a man of honor, and I would keep the solemn promises he made before we were married," writes Norma Elson from South Carolina. "Frank was absolutely honest with me. He told me he had a bad record, when we first met. Or rather, he didn't have to tell me, as everyone knew about it. He was a great figure in our town, a good deal older than my crowd of sophomores in college, a gambler, drinker, fast driver, but fascinating, or we thought so then. Any girl in town would have been flattered to go out with him."

"When he took me out it was to the smartest and most exciting places, and when he asked me to marry him it was with the solemn promise that he would stop drinking, betting, and going with the worst element in town."

"But he did everything with great dash, and he was handsome then; anyway, we were married, against my parents' desperate protest. I was 19, Frank said he was 36, he was really almost five years older."

"Well, of course, once we were married he completely gave up all efforts to reform. He hadn't gotten very far with them, and he never tried again. At the slightest suggestion of improvement or self-control he grew furious, and I soon learned to avoid occasions of criticism. He came and went, gambled, drank, wasted money as he pleased. From my expectation of excitement, drama, change I sank to a quiet, long-suffering wifehood that asked only for peace. Frank was jailed for house-breaking when our boy was two years old, and served seven years."

Had Same Old Vices.

"When he came out his life was over, although he lived for eleven more. He drifted about my boarding-house, gray-headed, a sad shadow of his old self, borrowing money where he could, still the same restless, wasteful, intemperate man. I stuck to my bargain, from sheer pride, and perhaps because it was the line of least resistance, but my heart was broken over and over again. My only comfort is that during the long years of keeping boards I have now and then come across girls who were on the brink of making the mistake I did, and whom I have been able to influence. Some times girls will listen to a stranger when their own mothers cannot guide them; if I have saved a few of these, I am repaid. But I hate to look back across these thirty wasted years, and remember the confidence and ignorance with which I threw my life away."

This letter came to me some months ago, but I was reminded of it lately when I read of the young wife of a man whose criminal record she knew perfectly well when she married him a few years ago. While she was still in her bridal year his petty thefts went on, so that her life was one of continual terror of the law. Finally he committed a more serious robbery, rushed into a crowd, and while the horrified bystanders took to flight, was shot down like a dog by a policeman's gun. More fortunate than Norma Elson, whose letter is quoted above, this young wife is freed from her mistake already, and can withdraw to get over the shock of her marriage, and perhaps make a wiser choice sometime.

Norma had 27 years of wretched marriage, and when she emerged from them her youth, energy, hope, ambition were all dead.

"He gave up all efforts to reform..."

THEY DON'T CHANGE

The free-spending, high-flying type of man is attractive to many women. His stylish clothes, dashing manner and general charm blind her to his faults and vices.

Miss Norris quotes a letter from a woman who married one of these handsome men-about-town. He was more than twice her age, but she laughed that off. He freely told her about his past, although most of it was common knowledge. But he swore that he would reform; quit drinking, gambling and traveling with the town's underworld characters.

Soon after their marriage, however, he quit all pretense of amending his ways. He became a petty thief and then a house-breaker. For this offense he served seven years in jail.

This unfortunate woman tells Miss Norris that her only happiness during those sad years was that occasionally she has been able to save some foolish, headstrong girl from making the same mistake that she made.

Many a sensible-seeming marriage goes on the rocks, and many an apparently reckless venture succeeds. But in all my years of study of matrimony I have never known a drunkard, a gambler, a wastrel really to reform. If he is capable of reform, he will manage it without the promise of help from a lovely, trusting girl. How many men would marry weak immoral intemperate women on their tearful promises of improvement? No sane man would consider it.

Attractive Rascals.

But, unfortunately, too often the lawless boy is the attractive boy. Where other young men are careful about spending, scrupulous about keeping office hours, serious and perhaps dull when planning the future, the fascinating scamp gives life an impression of gaiety and daring. He usually isn't working hard, he has no plans. He is spending other people's money, and so it flows easily. Audacity has always paid high interest for awhile. Gambling and borrowing and drinking lend a certain glamour to youth—for a while. Contrasted with the younger, less sophisticated men, the Byrons of society cut a brilliant dash.

But no woman in the world has so wretched a life as the one who marries a rake to reform him. She'll never change him, but he'll change her. He'll so steep her in anxieties, humiliations, bewilderingments, fear, that she'll not dare open her mouth.

A young San Francisco girl married an actor some twenty years ago. That is, he said he was an actor, but the only part he ever had was the one he was playing when she married him. She was alone in miserable lodgings when her four children were born; she was alone when a three-year-old girl, who had never known proper housing, food, or care, died in her arms. Wally came and went as carefree as a butterfly. But he never dined at home. "Kid and women food," he said, wasn't good enough for him. It was this man of whom his wife wrote me, in her engagement days. "I'd rather have him untrue to me, than have another man true; I'd rather starve with him than live in luxury with anyone else. He's jealous, he's a spendthrift, he's false to me already—and I love it! Other girls may exist; I'm going to live!"

Well, she looks today as if she'd lived—a thousand years.

Editor's Corner

It is a national habit in our country to divide into schools of thought on any issue, and if there is no issue we divide up anyway and create one.

We have divided thus on many issues regarding Britain and have created others. But there is one important aspect of Britain's economy that we must not be divided about because it can lead to disastrous results right here at home. That aspect is the simple recognition of Britain's socialist status.

At least let us recognize the socialistic aspects of Britain, whether she be totally socialistic or not, and meanwhile let us recognize that socialism did not cause Britain's troubles, but is being applied as remedy now, after the troubles have come, and it is failing now.

Socialism is always advocated on the grounds that it will divide the wealth to the benefit of the underprivileged. The truth is that socialism extends the poverty and everyone is the loser except for the bureaucrats that run the show.

There is nothing illogical about it. Accumulated wealth, much as it may be denounced, builds, creating jobs and opportunity, and it is the only source of opportunity for you and for me. Under socialism, the government accumulates the wealth, and the opportunity for the people to advance themselves is to join the ranks of the bureaucrats. Invested savings built this country and its industries. Other nations have raw materials and natural resources comparable to ours, but only in this nation, under a system of government which was founded on the idea of guaranteeing a man the fruits of his initiative and success, have those resources been developed close to the maximum. Incentive built our country from wilderness in less than two centuries.

Failure of socialism in England can be easily explained. The policy of the Labor government is to rigidly restrict individual economic advancement, to destroy established wealth and to make all productive enterprise a function of the state. Incentive is destroyed and the morass of governmental red tape totally obscures initiative. All enterprise must fall within inelastic, unimaginative rules, and the result is that British industrial recovery has made no progress at all.

The great lesson to be learned is one which has lived in theory for a long time and now is merely being underscored by our transatlantic neighbors—socialism saps the vitality of the people. It exalts mediocrity. It turns nations into poorhouses.

And there are many indications that a trend toward socialism was established here long ago. Little indications that are subtle and hard to recognize because they came into being with broader concepts that were for the benefit of the people.

For instance, find if you can a union shop that does not adhere rigidly to the principle of "seniority." And where does such a concept fit in with American ideals of free enterprise? Seniority came with the labor movement, and the labor movement was necessary because industry proved itself a horrible culture

—a status it would like to achieve again. But where is there incentive, under such principles, for initiative and enterprise? Why should the man work hard and think about his work, why should he use his good American horse sense to further production, when the promotion goes to the man who is "in line" for it by virtue of having worked in the particular plant longer?

And where does the principle of "wage scales" allow for the man who produces more and works better. Your editor himself worked once in some Illinois railroad shops where hundreds of other workers criticized him for "working too hard," for "killing the job."

Somewhere there must be answers to these things. Perhaps it would be for you and I, the voters, to brand as ridiculous idiots the men who say we are all controlled by economic laws and not by the ideas of our leaders, or by their lack of ideas and ideals.

One thing is fairly certain—most of us are set in our ways and our politicians who were willing enough to send our men away to die for our country have not themselves the courage to live for it. Which brings the answer right back to Hondo High School and the others in Medina County.

Perhaps it would be a good idea to give our classes a few copies of Aesop's Fables instead of Economics for the Millions. Then at least they would know the story of the fox and the wolf and the sheepskin, in government and at the corner store and at the ballot box.

SOIL CONSERVATION GLOSSARY

Written for The Christian Science Monitor

CONTOURING: Farming with curving furrows to fit the lay of the land instead of with straight furrows up and down hill. The curved furrows catch and hold the rainfall so that much of it soaks into the ground. They also make plowing easier.

TERRACING: Ridging land on or nearly on the contour. Terraces with slight grade slow runoff water, guiding it to safe disposal at the sides of the fields. Level terraces hold all the rainfall.

CROP ROTATIONS: This means raising a sequence of different crops on a piece of ground according to a planned pattern so as to keep the soil productive and to improve it. Usually the planting of a soil-depleting crop is followed by one or more known to be soil-building.

MULCHING: "Stubble-mulching," "trash cultivation," or "subsurface tillage" means cultivating the soil with implements that do not, like the moldboard plow, turn it upside down. Straw or other residues are left on the ground, cutting down erosion, and evaporation.

GULLY CONTROL: Stopping eroding gullies by use of grass, vines, shrubs, flumes, and other devices to lessen the cutting power of waterfalls.

GRASSSED WATERWAYS: Protected channels and outlets to carry off excess water from terraces and near-contour crop rows. These waterways are stabilized against erosion by grasses, legumes, and vines.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT: A legal subdivision of state government, organized and administered by farmers.

Letters To The Editor

In as much as it wasn't possible for me to tell everyone good-bye, I take this means to do so. Altho we were in Hondo a very short time, we learned to love it and the friends made there will not soon be forgotten. We regret having had to leave Hondo, but it became necessary that a change of location be made that we might be better able to carry on the work we have started. I hope my successor finds in Hondo the friends and the fine community that we knew while there.

My regards to The Anvil Herald and the entire staff. It is the best small town paper I have ever had the pleasure of reading. It was a great help to me and the work I was in while there, for which I am grateful, to say the least. If ever I am through your way, I'll look you up.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed)
